PA DIVERSITY NETWORK ON TV

PDN members appeared on a live 1 1/2 hour call in show on GLBT issues on WYOU in Wilkes-Barre. See photos and part of the show though a link at www.padiversity.org.

BECOME A PDN MEMBER TO RECEIVE THE VALLEY GAY PRESS IN THE MAIL, SEE PAGE 10.

Readers, write or email
"What's That About?"
editor Liz Bradbury with questions about GLBT issues.

Dear WTA: There was a primary election and but I didn't get a Candidate Guide from PA-GALA. What's up and who won the election? Signed, Allentown GLBT Super Voter

Dear GLBT S.V., First, please remember that PA Diversity Network (the organization that produces the Valley Gay Press) that is run by me (Liz Bradbury) and Patricia Sullivan, is not in any way the same group as PA-GALA (the Pennsylvania Gay and Lesbian Alliance) that is run by Steve Black. PA Diversity Network is the kind of charity organization that cannot endorse candidates or tell you who to vote for. PA-GALA is a political lobbying organization that does endorse candidates. However, this year Steve did not collect and send out voting information for the May primary election. PA-GALA has stated that it is currently using its resources to help pass the addition of sexual orientation and gender identity to the PA Human Relations Act --which will ban discrimination in employment, housing and public accommodation in the State.

As far as who won the Primary goes, here's some of the interesting things that happened in your area: Gloria Hamm (mother of local GLBT activist Allyson Hamm) won a Democratic nomination for Lehigh County Commissioner with the highest number of votes of all Democrat Commissioner candidates. The winners of the Democratic Allentown City Council race for Democratic nominees were, Jeanette Eichenwald, Mike Donavon and Peter Schwyer. Each of these winners has expressed support for the GLBT community in the past. These were good wins.

Democratic candidate for Allentown City Controller beat notable anti-gay candidate Lou Hersham, read more about him on page 11 in Liz Out Loud. We're also glad that Dan McCarthy won one of the Judge nominations for Lehigh County.

MESSAGE FROM LOCAL ACTIVIST MUEHLBERG GSA LEADER ADRIAN SHANKER:

Kait Merrit, also of Muehlenberg's GSA and I were part of the PA delegation for the National Gender Lobby Day in May. It was a small delegation so we had a chance to speak quite a bit to a variety of Washington DC legislators and their staff.

PA US Senator Bob Casey's staff is looking specifically for some personal stories from constituents about why we need the Federal Hate Crimes Bill. SENATOR CASEY IS VERY MUCH SUPPORTING IT, but wants to have some Pennsylvania examples of hate crimes and hate actions to use when he is responding to conservatives. It may help if people contact Casey's office with examples of IN STATE LGBT bullying. Contact Information for Casey's office is: Washington, D.C. Office, 383 Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510, Phone: (202) 224-6324, Toll Free: (866) 802-2833, Fax: (202) 228-0604.

SCOTT SAYS

By Scott Laubner

OSCAR WILDE BOOKSTORE

When Oscar Wilde arrived in New York on tour in January of 1882, a customs official asked if he had anything to declare. "Nothing but my genius," he replied. If he had visited New York a hundred years later he might have shopped at the bookstore that bears his name.

The Oscar Wilde Bookstore has a historic place in our community's development. The bookstore has several thousand items in stock and can order anything for you that's still in print. The books don't necessarily have to be gay interest only; several customers have ordered their Harry Potter books through the bookstore.

I went down to 15 Christopher Street, in the heart of Greenwich Village, to ask Cecilia the manager some questions. When queried as to which famous people have shopped at the store she said Tab Hunter and Edward Albee. Al Pacino is working on a documentary about Oscar Wilde's play Salome. He visited the store twice and interviewed Kim, the owner, for the movie. Something to look for at your art house movie theater.

When asked what is the importance of shopping at Oscar Wilde instead of a large chain store Cecilia replied the bookstore really supported the community in the early days. And while chain stores are larger; the Oscar Wilde book store (and GLBT bookstores around the country) can offer more personalized service. Cecilia says her goal is to match the reader with the perfect book. The store has a website: www.oscarwildebooks.com. But if you're coming into the city it's worth a visit. It's open seven days a week from 11am to 7pm. And if you do go, tell Cecilia that Scott sent you!

READING COMMUNITY PLAYERS PRESENTS SEARCH

READING COMMUNITY PLAYERS presents Jane Wagner's award-winning comedy THE SEARCH FOR SIGNS OF INTELLIGENT LIFE IN THE UNIVERSE June 22 to July 1 at their 11th & Buttonwood Streets theatre.

SEARCH follows Trudy, a bag lady, as she plays tour guide to a group of aliens on a quest to discover what makes human beings tick. A collage of a dozen or so characters emerge in a variety of settings. Lily Tomlin won a Tony for her solo performance of the piece.

RCP will present the play with multiple actors, including Diann Stewart, Ruth Martelli, Denise Smagliniski, Christine Cieplinski, Sandra Cimochoowski, Kathy Newville and Melissa Sperat. Sue Sneeringer directs. For more information call the theatre at (610) 375-9106 or visit RCP's website at www.rcptheatre.org.

THE SEARCH FOR INTELLIGENT THEATER

I've just spent this past week casting a production of Jane Wagner's SEARCH FOR SIGNS OF INTELLIGENT LIFE IN THE UNIVERSE (Reading Community Players, June 22 thru July 1 / www.rcptheatre.org). The initial readthrough was two nights ago as I write and the experience was invigorating. Especially on the heels of a collision with the director of one of my own plays at another theatre the previous week who took offense at some of the language and behavior of my characters. The sublime on the heels of the ridiculous!

It is my mistaken impulse to assume that everyone knows SEARCH and has seen Lily Tomlin perform it solo at least ONCE but there were a few actors in our company who had not ever seen the play and a couple who barely knew of it. That didn't really surprise me though it did seem odd (it always does on the occasions when I remember how old I really am and how long ago it was for that first time in LA!). Essentially, it's one of the Wagner/Tomlin stock characters, TRUDY, a Bag Lady, accessing various characters (real or imagined...the audience gets to choose) and their search for meaning in life as Trudy helps aliens figure out how we humans tick. The reaction of the younger actors to Lyn's second act monologue was intriguing, too. It's basically the Cliff notes of the women's liberation movement from the Sixties thru to Geraldine Ferraro accepting the nomination for Veep in 1984.

It will be fun to direct the piece and see what all of us have gleaned from that era. I was barely wearing a bra yet when the burnings began but at least two or three of my actors hadn't even been born yet!

I wish I could chalk the other matter up to a generation gap, too, but the fellow directing my play is no kid. He does seem to have skipped the part of the cultural revolution where some "girls" say the "F" word and some are sexually active without apology and some would rather touch girls than boys. At least that's what I'm left to glean from his response to my refusal to delete any more of what he deemed "vulgar" from my play. It's always a mistake to edit to suit someone else's taste and/or ethical code. But with opportunity for production of new material so rare, production teams can easily wreak havoc on a writer who's just trying to see her work come to life off the page. I gave in a little at first then got hold of my senses and stood my ground. The director quit the next day. The production goes on because I guess it is bigger than both of us. I would gloat but I'm actually grateful to him. Out of our tense collaboration a leaner, meaner revision of the play has emerged.

Guess I should at least send him a "thank you" note. Perhaps I'll comp him to a couple of tickets to see SEARCH instead!

HATE CRIMES BILL PASSES HOUSE

The Federal Hate Crimes Bill passed in the House (HR 1592 passed 237-180)!

PA Congressmen and women who voted in favor of it were: Yes (13) - Altmire, Bob Brady, Dent, Doyle, English, Gerlach, Holden, Kanjorski, Patrick Murphy, Murtha, Platts, Schwartz, Sestak (Our Local Congress people: Dent, Gerlach, Schwartz and Patrick Murphy--all came through!)

No (5) = Carney, Tim Murphy, Peterson, Pitts, Shuster. Absent (1) = Fattah. The next hurdle is the US Senate and then getting by the President without a veto.

READING PRIDE FUNDRAISER AT THE HOTEL STIRLING - A WONDERFUL SUCCESS

The Reading Pride Fundraiser on May 20 at the Stirling Guest Hotel was a huge success with attendance of over 160 people. The beautiful Stirling Hotel was a fabulous backdrop to excellent gourmet food, fine wine, special beer, terrific music with pianist Danny Coldren, vocalist Ira Leighton and a jazz trio led by pianist Matt Emkey. The evening also featured the PA Diversity Network Photo Project. PDN was able to photograph 12 new couples attending the event, who wanted to be part of the project. The silent auction of fine art, valuable goods and interesting services also was a big hit. Congratulations to the organizers of the event for bringing the GLBT people of Reading and their many allies together for an exciting, fun event. See the PDN web site at www.padiversity.org for photos of the event.

FATHER'S DAY

Traditionally, my contribution to the June VGP is a celebration of Gay Pride. However, since Lehigh Valley has changed their Pride Fest to August, that's when I'll write about Pride. This is a companion piece to last month's tribute to my mother.

My father is a second generation lobster fisherman and I am his only son. He wanted a better life for his family than what the seasonal lobstering profession offered and attempted a few short term jobs (garage mechanic, Pepsi-Cola truck driver) in a couple of cities when I was a toddler, before returning to Deer Isle, ME to inherit his father's boat and a life made from the offerings of the sea.

He worked 16 hour days and fell asleep in front of the TV news most nights. He didn't have much time to toss a ball or play with my sisters and me. While building our house he and my mother made a home out of his workshop. The same building he built lobster traps in. None of my other friends lived in their father's work shop. But, a child doesn't really know any different. When you have the love of your family, you don't need much else.

Because of financial issues or the living arrangements, or whatever reason my parents' relationship could be very strained during this period. I spoke of my mother's physical limitations last month. When they would argue I always took my mother's side. She was my hero and I wanted to protect her from my father's verbal attacks. The truth is, she could give as good as she got.

It took some distance of time and space for me to appreciate my father's support and role as a provider. My mother was viewed as the outspoken, fun, adventurous one. The good cop, if you will. My dad, who was more grounded in reality, and paid the bills, tried to make a home for his family while keeping us out of debt. He likes to say that when he would forbid me to do something, I would nod and nod, then as soon as his back was turned I would do it anyway.

When I was 12, there was an act of infidelity. I'm not going to say by whom, but when it ended, my parents reconnected and were closer than ever before. Like newlyweds, they sat close to each other in my dad's pickup, holding hands and cruising down the winding roads of the island. I never heard them argue again. They even went on a cruise and took more vacations together. They had stopped fighting and became a comfort to each other. They celebrated 30 years together before my mother died.

I was always afraid to tell my parents I was gay because I figured my dad, being the macho, moody Cancer that he is, would disown me and I would never get to see my mother again. After my mother passed I told him. We've shared hugs, tears, laughs and great memories since. He has seen me through three long term relationships and has been a shoulder when I needed to talk. He has always welcomed my friends, be they gay or straight, male or female, usually with a beer or cocktail and a hearty laugh. Because he works less now, he has more time to tend to his grandchildren and their interests. He is a proud grandfather and tears up when discussing their accomplishments. He has been in a loving relationship for years. I credit her with telling my dad, "You can accept Steve being gay and be part of his life or you can miss out on everything that is important to him." I'm so very glad he listened to her. Looking back at his choices and decisions, I have a new respect for the unsung heroes in our lives. My dad is one to me.

DISNEY AND DIAPERS

We haven't gone on a real vacation since November of 2003. It was to Las Vegas and we went childless, as we hadn't yet adopted Lucas. Contrary to all of the promotion that Vegas is a family destination, once there you know it is really an adult oriented vacation. We are glad that our last vacation was an adult vacation as our intuition tells us we won't enjoy one of those for quite awhile again. Shortly after the Vegas vacation we adopted Lucas and haven't really been away from home since, other than our trip to Connecticut last year with Lucas, to visit his godmother. We definitely feel we are due for some sort of pleasure trip, if not by ourselves, then as a family. So, now that Lucas is over three years old, old enough to travel with us and hopefully enjoy the trip as well, we have begun planning a family vacation for the three of us.

It didn't take us long to come up with a proposal for our trip. We decided that it would be a Disney vacation. Not the full Disney World extravaganza, but a Disney cruise. We may not be "cruising" on a big gay Atlantis ship with hot men from all over the country or celebrating our "family" status on one of Rosie's annual excursions out to sea, but we will be having a blast with all those Disney queens, or is it princesses? Snow White, Cinderella, the wicked Stepmother, and if we are lucky, Mommy dearest may make an appearance if Lucas misbehaves...oops, wrong movie.

Anyway, the Disney characters will be aboard. Even more enticing is that we have recently learned that Disney has begun promoting their wedding packages to gay couples...once previously only targeted to the heterosexual market. Although not legal, gays can now celebrate their wedding in the Magic Kingdom or on the ship. Optional, is Mickey or our personal favorite, Minnie Mouse, as a witness.

Although we are already "married" and do not plan on having another ceremony we may be able to attend a gay wedding on the ship. What a cool thing for Lucas to be able to see; that some of his favorite fantasy characters are gay-friendly. Maybe one or two will come out of the closet too. After all, if Barney and Tinkey-Winkey did, why can't Donald or Daisy do the same?

Back to reality now, we need to have Lucas completely potty-trained for this vacation. It is a requirement for kids who want to enter the pools. So we have set a goal to be potty trained by October. By the way things are going we have our work cut out for us. This will be a whole other column. In the meantime we will persevere, and we will remember to tell Lucas when he has an accident, and we are at wits end, that it is not him we are mad at but we are mad at the dirty diaper.

EQUALITY ADVOCATES OBTAINS INSURANCE REIMBURSEMENT FOR SEX REASSIGNMENT SURGERY

ALLENTOWN, PA - After a 15 month battle with insurer Highmark Blue Shield, transgender employee Jan Stacy has been awarded close to full reimbursement for sex reassignment surgery ("SRS"). Ms. Stacy's claim was originally denied shortly after she underwent sex reassignment surgery in 2006. Equality Advocates undertook representation of Ms. Stacy several months later, and recently obtained nearly full reimbursement of Ms. Stacy's SRS costs on her behalf.

Ms. Stacy's difficulties with Highmark began shortly after her surgery, when she was informed that SRS was not covered by her plan. Ms. Stacy contacted her employer, who informed her that the surgery was, in fact covered through her employee health plan. Highmark continued to refuse to pay the claim, however, insisting that SRS was not subject to coverage. Even after the initial intervention of Equality Advocates, Highmark continued to insist that it owed Ms. Stacy no reimbursement under the plan and even extended the policy exclusions to a routine office visit.

"It is appalling how badly Highmark Blue Shield mishandled Ms. Stacy's claim," said Katie Eyer, Employment Rights Project Attorney at Equality Advocates. "Their repeated refusal to pay this claim was clearly the result of bias against the transgender community, and demonstrated a willful ignorance of the medical necessity of procedures such as SRS."

Even after Highmark finally conceded that Ms. Stacy's surgery was covered by her employer's current plan, they continued to refuse to pay most of the claim, on the grounds that Ms. Stacy's surgery was performed out of network, and that Ms. Stacy's surgeon did not charge the "reasonable and necessary" amount for the procedure. As a result of the continued advocacy of Equality Advocates and the intervention of Ms. Stacy's employer, these determinations were ultimately reversed, and Ms. Stacy was awarded $14,097.

"Every step of the way throughout this process, Ms. Stacy's employer has been an advocate for her recovery of reimbursement from Highmark," said Katie Eyer. "Ms. Stacy's company's demonstrated commitment to equality for their transgender employees goes far beyond that of most other employers and is to be commended."

JERRY & LOU

By Liz Bradbury

If there is such a thing as hell, then it's for politicians and community leaders who try to take rights away from minorities by inflaming hate between classes of people.

This month, anti-civil-rights-in-the-guise-of-religion political activist Jerry Falwell died. And anti-civil-rights-in-the-name-of-phony-information candidate for Allentown Controller Lou Hershman, lost the primary election ending (at least for now) 32 years in office.

See a series of outrageous quotes by Falwell on page 12 of this paper. They show that disregarding facts and commonsense and inflaming fear and blame was Falwell's technique to encourage ignorant or bigoted followers to join his hateful army and to stoke the bank accounts of far right conservative churches, groups and candidates.

Closer to home, Allentown City Councilman Lou Hershman played the same game. In 2002, after City Council passed the addition of sexual orientation and gender identity to Allentown's Anti-Discrimination Ordinance protecting people from employment, housing, and public accommodation discrimination, Hershman joined a petition effort to overturn the Ordinance. His overzealous collection of signatures included writing in much of the signer's information himself with his distinctive blue fountain pen -- once even writing his own address under someone else's name. Dozens who signed his petitions removed their names when they finally found out what the petition was really about.

Hershman told the Morning Call newspaper that he was fighting against the Ordinance because he -- Wanted to protect the Boy Scouts. (I guess so the Boy Scouts would still be able to ban gay and transgender children from their organization.)

But, when he was circulating his petition at a polling place on primary election day in 2002, I said him point blank, "Lou, the Ordinance expressly excludes membership organizations like the Boy Scouts. The Ordinance doesn't regulate them or religious organizations."

Hershman looked at me blankly. So I took the petition out of his hand and flipped to the Ordinance text attached to it. I turned to the section that excluded the Boy Scouts, and pointed. I said, "Here's the amendment, look here's the vote tally, and YOU voted for it."

Lou looked at the ordinance nervously and mumbled... "That wasn't in there before."

So I said, "OK, but you're seeing it now, right? So will you stop circulating this petition?" Hershman just stared at me. He was reported as saying on more than one occasion that he was going to "get votes" for circulating this petition. The facts didn't interest him.

After a lot of work, pro-fairness people won out against Hershman's petition effort and an anti-gay lawsuit (funded in part by James Dobson's Focus on the Family). Allentown has proudly kept the pro-equality ordinance in place.

Now-a-days, Lou Hershman has picked blaming illegal aliens as his new way to get votes. While he inflames people against Spanish heritage minorities, he says he's pushing his illegal alien ordinance because "they" are taking jobs from Allentown workers. He's refused to have hearings to investigate if this is true. He won't listen to evidence from Police and INS that disprove the need for his expensive, divisive, us-and-them law. Echoes of Falwell.

Luckily, Hershman lost this election. Let's hope it's because Allentown is tired of Hershman's divisive style. I certainly am. And by the way, though I personally do not believe in hell, Jerry Falwell did. Hot enough for ya, Jerry?

ISSUES FOR GLBT BABY BOOMERS

The Lesbian and Gay Aging Issues Network, The American Society on Aging and Zogby International surveyed 1000 GLBT individuals between the ages of 40 and 61 on issues of aging.

Did you know that: One in four of GLBT baby boomers are caregivers for an adult friend or family member compared to one in five of their heterosexual counterparts? -- In the general population women provide up to 50% more caregiving than men, but there is no significant gender difference in caregiving among GLBT people. -- Of the one in five GLBT people providing 41 or more hours of caregiving activities a week, seventeen percent are providing this care in addition to their full time employment. -- Among these GLBT caregivers, 53% are caring for relatives from their family of origin, 36% for parents, 18% for partners, 14% for friends and 12% for other non relatives. This data elicited the following comment from the study's author: "Given the recent attention to the hidden economic costs of caregiving, this tremendous commitment of time and resources by GLBT boomers represents a substantial and largely invisible contribution to the health care sector and to the U.S. economy overall."

In addition, more than 75% of GLBT people expect to become caregivers for someone else and GLBT people are more likely to worry about their later years than their heterosexual counterparts. Still, the data suggests that only one in six GLBT people between ages 40-61 have made financial or residential plans for their later years. On the other hand, 72% have discussed end of life preferences and treatment in detail with someone very close to them. This percentage increases to 81% among those who have marriages, civil unions or domestic partnerships. But one half (51%) still don't have legal documentation in the form of wills, living wills and powers of to protect them, their partners and their children.

The lack of social and legal sanctions for our relationships and the history of a health care system that has in large part been unresponsive to our needs, certainly has effected our life planning decisions. It is no surprise that many GLBT people are unlikely to have discussed important life planning issues with physicians, legal or financial professionals, adult children, therapists or spiritual advisors. Participants in the MetLife study cited prejudice and discrimination as particular worries in relation to GLBT aging, especially in relation to health care.

It is clear that not enough of us have taken appropriate actions to provide for ourselves, our partners and children even though so many in our community have a long history of first hand experience in caregiving for others. The fact that, in large part, GLBT people live in families of choice and may not be able to count upon their families of origin increases the burden of responsibility.

In previous columns we've given information about wills, living wills and powers of attorney as tools to protect GLBT families. In this new series we will be exploring other issues in aging for the GLBT population including the responsiveness or lack of responsiveness of the health care system, options for residential living and the issues facing aging gay men and lesbians who come out in their later years.

QUOTE #1

"AIDS is not just God's punishment for homosexuals; it is God's punishment for the society that tolerates homosexuals.... To oppose (AIDS) would be like an Israelite jumping in the Red Sea to save one of Pharaoh's chariotters." -- Jerry Falwell

QUOTE #2

"Look at the Metropolitan Community Church today, the gay church, almost accepted into the World Council of Churches. ...But they will try again and again until they get in, and the tragedy is that they would get one vote. Because they are spoken of here in Jude as being brute beasts, that is going to the baser lust of the flesh to live immorally...But thank God this vile and satanic system will one day be utterly annihilated and there'll be a celebration in heaven."

VALLEY GAY PRESS BOOK REVIEW

"Psycho Kitties" by Nicole Hollander
Sourcebooks $9.95

If you're not familiar with Nicole Hollander's "Sylvia" cartoons, then turn to page 4 in this paper. VGP has been featuring "Sylvia" for several months.

Like a pair of inseparable wily twin felines, Psycho Kitties's diverting collection of deceptively simple drawings is teamed with razor sharp, wickedly witty text. If you know any cats personally, you know this is just what they'd say. Example: Cartoon titled "Insincere Apologies of Cats" shows a smart alec kitty knocking off the wedding couple ornament, as he sits on top of the cake, saying, "I'm sorry, were you saving this cake for a special occasion?"

Nicole Hollander's work is definitely 5 star, my only criticism with this book is mechanical. The reproductions of the cartoons are faded looking, as though the printer was running out of toner. But there's a laugh on every page of Psycho Kitties, what could be a better recommendation than that?
